Also: Personal Assistant to New York Times
best-selling author, Neale Donald Walsch.

Donna Corso is an Amazon.com best-selling author of When the Wind Chimes Chime: Ending the Greatest Fear of All. Committed to opening a dialogue about death and dying, she encourages people to explore the beliefs and fears that shape their end-of-life experience and to come to terms with their fears so they can embrace death as part of the natural life cycle.

While being an advocate for reclaiming our human rights and dignity, Donna is also an advocate for our beloved Planet Earth. Her passion for the environment was ignited in 1988 when she attended her first Windstar Symposium in Aspen, Colorado. (Windstar was a grassroots environmental education organization co-founded by singer John Denver in 1976.) Following her attendance at that symposium, she returned home and became involved in environmental efforts through which she was honored with an Environmental Improvement Award in 1994 in Lake County, Ohio.

Donna currently resides in Ashland, Oregon, where she has been personal assistant to New York Times best-selling author, Neale Donald Walsch, since 2001. Her website is www.donnacorso.com.
